Charitable Giving Benefits

Many of us wish we could give more money today. But the reality of current financial obligations and cash flow can keep our giving lower than we'd really like.

Many individuals think that the only way to support an organization is by giving cash. However, giving cash is not always the best way to give from a tax perspective.

You have the opportunity to take advantage of tax incentives available to harness as many resources as possible for Central Florida Speech and Hearing Center.

Learn more about the many ways to give through gifts of securities, real estate and other appreciated assets.

Ways to Give: Appreciated Assets

Gifts of Stocks and Bonds

Giving gifts in the form of securities, such as stocks and bonds, can be a great way to give, while also allowing you to avoid capital gains taxes that you'd have to pay if you sold these assets on your own.

Retirement Assets

A gift from your IRA, 401K, or other tax-deferred plan can be an easy and important way to fund the ongoing work of Central Florida Speech and Hearing Center.

Real Estate

Consider making a gift of your real estate property, such as your vacation home or vacant land.

Life Insurance

Do you have a life insurance plan that is no longer needed? Consider making Central Florida Speech and Hearing Center the beneficiary.

All of these gift options allow you to further the work you care about today without spending your current disposable income.

Wills and Bequests

Leaving Central Florida Speech and Hearing in your will can help your family – and ours—plan for a brighter future.
